

The Rhetoric of
Retelling Old
Romances

Medievalist Poetry by Alfred
Tennyson and William Morris

Yoshiko Seki

EIHŌSHA

Contents

Acknowledgement	vii
Abbreviations	ix
List of Figures	x
INTRODUCTION	3
PART I PRELIMINARY	17
Chapter 1 The Function of Poetry in the Age of Periodical Criticism	20
PART II ALFRED TENNYSON	45
Chapter 2 Voicing Women in the First Idylls of the King	47
Chapter 3 The Holy Grail in the Shadow of Darwinism	63
Chapter 4 Selection of the Idyllic Genre: Rebuilding Camelot in Idylls of the King	85
PART III WILLIAM MORRIS	103
Chapter 5 Morris in the Discussion of the 'Dramatic': 'The Defence of Guenevere'	105
Chapter 6 Morris in Apprenticeship: His Étude on the Arthurian Motif	121
Chapter 7 Romance, or the Sense of the Past in The Earthly Paradise	137
Chapter 8 Morris as a Storyteller: His Position in the Aesthetic Movement	159
CONCLUSION	175
Appendix A Tennyson's Idylls of the King : A Chronology	178
Appendix B Morris's The Earthly Paradise : The Structure	180
Bibliography	181
Index	189